Improving Patients' Lives

The Australian Patients Association (APA) is a voice for patients in the Australian health care system, aiming to improve patients' lives.

The Australian Patients Association (APA) is a not-for-profit organisation established to represent patients' interests, promote patient issues and improve patients' lives.

The APA aims to educate patients about their rights and choices. It also aims to expose poor and inequitable patient care and highlight deficiencies in the public and private healthcare system. We will research and develop sensible remedies to benefit members and the broader community.

Governed by an experienced and passionate Advisory Board, the APA receives no funding from government which ensures that we maintain an independent voice on issues that really matter to patients and their families.

We believe that an effective, independent organization working on behalf of patients can have a proactive influence upon and effect positive change to patient care throughout Australia.
